MIDSUMMER—
(From the New York Times.)
Fragrance, the poetry of lovely flowers.

Is in the singing breeze as in the rose, Aristocrat of beauty, and in those Unparaphed children of the wilding showers.

A lark is whistling through a dark cloud lowers; In a thrush's song a tree, remembered rows.

Fresh leaves for me and at my morning's close The red-winged blackbird gladdens blueflag bowers.

Who so loves nature let him straightway fare To wood and field when the mid-summer bee

Plunders a thousand sweets, and when the air Sun-scented, dreams of Autumn; there shall he Indulge his spirit, sensing everywhere The perfumed glow of Nature's poetry.

W. M. S. POSTPONES MEETING—(Contributed.)

The Woman's Missionary Society of the Christian church, owing to the Summer School of Missions at Assembly Park, will postpone their usual time of meeting which would be Thursday, Aug. 10th, to the following Tuesday, Aug. 15th. Please note carefully the change of day. Tuesday, 2:30 p. m. at the church. Our studies at this time will be on Tibet, the land where Dr. Shelton gave his life.

In carrying on the material side of what we call "church work," the spiritual side may be so easily neglected.

The Missionary Society is the spiritual side of the church. Every member of the society should be present if possible, to help in the great work the Lord has commissioned His church to do.

"Let us ever be mindful of the things of the Lord."

ENTERTAINED WITH BRIDGE YESTERDAY—

Yesterday afternoon at their home on West Chamberlain street, Misses Florence and Josephine Watts entertained at bridge for their sister, Miss Marguerite Watts. There were five tables of bridge, and it proved an exceptionally pleasant afternoon for all. Miss Lucille Frye won the first prize and Miss Ruth Worthington won the consolation trophy.

Garden flowers and ferns were the decorations and were very pretty. Miss Gladys Allman of Mt. Carroll was an out-of-town guest, at the party which was given in honor of the approaching marriage of Miss Marguerite Watts and Paul Johnson of Sterling.

TO GATHER AT LOWELL PARK THURSDAY—

The members of the Baptist churches of Morrison, Sterling and Dixon will gather Thursday afternoon at Lowell Park to enjoy a picnic supper and a program.

All members and friends are cordially invited to attend. The program in the afternoon will be followed by the supper. The supper and entertainment will be over in plenty of time for those who so desire, to attend the evening session at the Assembly Park.

MARRIAGE A LA MODE—

In remote parts of Greece when a church functionary dies the villagers go in a body to his wife and ask her if she ever intends to marry again.

If her reply is in the affirmative, her husband is buried sitting up, but if she says she expects to renounce further matrimonial ventures, the man is buried in the conventional supine posture.

IF YOU ARE WELL BRED—

You remember it is not good form to use initials, nicknames or surnames or given names alone when signing correspondence.

A married woman should sign herself "Mary Smith," not "Mrs. John Smith." If she wishes to identify herself as the wife of John Smith she may put the name, Mrs. John Smith in brackets beneath her own name.

On Monday evening, Mrs. Smith of 919 West First street entertained a number of friends in honor of her son, John's, twenty-first birthday.

Drastic Control of Germany's Finances is Demand of France

London, Aug. 8.—(By the Associated Press.)—Drastic measures of financial control in Germany, are provided for in Premier Poincare's draft of the conditions under which France is willing that the Reichsbank shall have a moratorium to the end of the present year.

The conditions, which are to be considered by the financial committee of the allied conference today, are understood to include exploitation of the German customs, mines, railroads and forests, control of the Reichsbank and the German bank note press, and supervision of foreign currencies, as well as exports and imports. All these would be under the active control of international committees setting in Berlin.

German industries would have to surrender to the allies 26 per cent and in some cases much more, of their capital, while, as a major measure to enforce compliance, the occupation and expropriation of the Ruhr coal field would be kept in reserve.

TUCKS
Fine tucks are used as the only trimming on many smart gowns for fall. Stitching, applied very close together, is also an approved trimming.

Talking-machine records of the voices of leading men are being made on copper discs, said to last 10,000 years, and stored in the Prussian State Library.

New York, Aug. 8.—A referee's report recommending that a decree of divorce be granted Arthur A. Gordon against Nora Bayes, actress, known in private life as Eleanor Gordon, was filed in court here today.

Mrs. Gordon is accused of misconduct with Arthur Welton, described as a Baltimore banker. The report recommended that the Gordon's adopted son, John Katuz, aged 3, be left to the care of his foster father.

Sensational testimony was presented against Miss Bayes, popular in vaudeville and musical comedy, who has been married and divorced several times.

Witnesses for the plaintiff, who lives at the Lambs Club, testified that on July 30 he entered a private house on West End Avenue through a parlor window with a number of detectives. The raid was conducted at five a. m.

The party, according to the testimony of Jerome C. Baum, a detective, found Miss Bayes and Welton in a bed room.

According to Baum, the raiders tipped upstairs in the dark and found a locked door. Baum testified that Gordon had knocked and said: "Arthur, open the door, or we'll break it in."

"If you break it in, I'll shoot," a feminine voice said, according to the testimony.

"All right shoot," Gordon is alleged to have answered.

Then the detective said the door was pushed open and Miss Bayes and Welton were revealed.

"I finally got you," Gordon was quoted as saying, adding that he intended to sue for divorce and reproaching Welton, who is said, had been his friend.

Miss Bayes, after whom a New York theatre, was named, once was the wife of Jack Norworth, actor. She married Gordon in 1920.

Mrs. Gordon is known in Dixon, having visited here a number of times.

Long Accepts Vote Which Defeated Him

By Associated Press Leased Wire

St. Louis, Aug. 8.—(By the Associated Press.)—Breckenridge Long, defeated by Senator James A. Reed for the democratic senatorial nomination at last Tuesday's primary today issued a statement saying he will neither ask a recount nor file a contest.

Declaring he still considered himself the choice of the democrats of Missouri for the senatorial toga, the former third assistant secretary of state declared between 40,000 and 50,000 republicans voted in the democratic primary, but "owing to a defective primary law, there is no legal remedy."

Reed's plurality was approximately 6,425.

Texas Town Agog Over Hitters' Race

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Winters, Texas, Aug. 9.—This little town situated on the plains of West Texas, with a Main street and not much else, is stirred to a high pitch today as Rogers Hornsby falls away from Kenneth Williams in the race for major league home run honors.

Winters is the birthplace of Hornsby, who as a star infielder for the Cardinals, trails Williams by two circuit clouts.

When the newspapers from "the city" arrive here on the tri-weekly train, it being said that the train leaves here one week and "tries" to get back the next all the "town sports" gather around the corner, there being only one, and discuss the home run situation in the big show.

Recently a system was inaugurated by a drug store by which the St. Louis club's games were posted by innings, home runs being shown on the display window. Ken would get his twenty-fifth and the crowd would cheer for Rogers to get his twenty-sixth.

Then came Ken's two circuiters in one day and the town of Winters became quiet. The rabid fans denounce Williams, but the wise ones merely say "Wait till Rogers gets started again—then, goodbye Mr. Kenneth."

So, in the birthplace of Rogers Hornsby, his name is on the lips of every person—man, woman and child. Even the Bohemian farmers in the territory surrounding Winters are pulling for him.

BIG GAMBLERS

The gambling casino at Monte Carlo feels the pinch of hard times.
Its income or take-off from the suckers has fallen to $4,204,000 francs a year. This is the latest financial report to the Paris bourse, where shares in the famous gambling house are quoted above 3000 francs.

Dividends paid by the Monte Carlo gambling corporation are only half as big as before the war. But as a business proposition, it is enough to make even a large American manufacturer green with envy. It is capitalized at about 40,000,000 francs.

When it comes to "breaking" the bank, Monte Carlo is financially ready even for the most ambitious plunger with a system. Individual tables are "broken" at Monte Carlo regularly. But the house, never.

You hear a lot about Europe being "busted." But you'd never imagine it while at Monte Carlo, even during the slump.

It is a vision of diamonds and vintage wines.

The lavish display of wealth at the casino, however, is not accompanied by any wild carnival atmosphere.

The gaming rooms are nearly as quiet as a graveyard. All around, according to recent visitors, it is one of the tamest sights in the world. Also one of the most sordid.

People are nearly as serious at losing money as they are in making it.
Running your eye over the gambling crowd at Monte Carlo you notice a predominance of fat ugly, beastial individuals who have "war profiteer" written all over them.

Then you notice that few of them are Americans which may be because American tourists usually are more interested these days in European frinking rooms than in gambling rooms.

The average American comes away wondering why the semi-bankrupt governments of Europe do not take steps to tax these rich, fat, ugly people so they would have less time and money to spend at Monte Carlo.

Heavily taxed, they might take more interest in building up their own countries instead of continually whining to Uncle Sam to do it.

WHAT BORES YOU?

Years from now, when young men of today will be white-haired and hobbling about on canes, their piping voices will interrupt the conversation in the airplane with this:

"I mind the time just like it was yesterday, back there" in 1922 when Bell, the inventor of the telephone, died. Strangest part of it all was that in his last years he didn't have any phone in his own house. Said it was a nuisance."

That will interest people of the future more than any other fact about the great inventor, just as it has recently been causing the most talk.

And yet it is a very simple piece of psychology.

A clerk in a candy store soon gets "sick of the sight of it."

The housewife, though she loves the furnishings of her home, often becomes bored almost beyond endurance by the sight of the ever-present droom and dish-pan.

Small wonder that Bell became bored and annoyed by the telephone after devoting most of his long life to it.

It corresponds to you, starting ju-mily on a task, but coming down the home stretch with: "If I ever finish this up, I'll never tackle another one."

A kitten never tires of playing with a ball of yarn. A squirrel would be content to run forever in its revolving cage. A toad never wearies of music.

All animal life is more or less concerned with routine existence. The difference between it and man is that man alone has the nervous temperament, forever seeking a change, tiring of the old, laboring for the thrill of the new.

This nervousness is what has made man develop into civilization while animal life has plodded along mechanically, without material improvement or progress.

In each of us there is a mysterious something that demands contrast in life, to keep us normal and progressing.

Physically, emotionally and mentally we react from the thrills of intense activity to a languid torpor.

It is a natural law and no life can be happy without recognizing and conforming to it. Very few men can avoid going to seed without having a hobby.

Often a wife is blamed for being irritable and grumbling when all that's wrong is that she is deprived of contrast by being cooped up without proper diversion.

Work like a beaver, when you're working. When you quit work, forget it—if you can. Concentration is a fine asset, but only in its place. If life bores you, it is your own fault.
The remedy is simple—cast about for diversions that will give you contrast. And be thankful for sorrows and setbacks. Without them for contrast all pleasures and successes would become boredom.

olinists, tells in Success magazine

BRINGING UP FATHER

JACK DAW'S ADVENTURES

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

Flop Fieldmouse had a bad habit.
He had a hundred relatives in Bright Meadow-land—the Meadow-Mouse family, the Harvest-Mouse family, the Jumping-Mouses, the House-Mouses and lots of others.
And here's what Flop would do:
He'd visit 'round about meal-time and find out what they had for dessert.
Then if he didn't like it, he'd go on to his next relative's house and sniff around and find out what they had, and stay there if it suited him. If not, he'd go on to his next relatives.
One day Flop struck it lucky. The Meadow-Mouses were having cherry pie for dessert.
That suited Flop. So he stayed and ate three pieces of pie.
Luck was with him. He wandered on to the Harvest-Mouses just to find they were having strawberry short-cake!
So he stayed and had two pieces.
On his way home he walked slowly for he was pretty full; but passing his aunt's, Mrs. Jennima Jumping-Mouse, as she was clearing up the dishes he saw a piece of chocolate cake.
In he went and sat around till his aunt offered it to him.
He gulped it down, winding up by eating a banana, a pickle and a piece of cheese.
When he got home his ma telephoned Dr. Snuffles.
Dr. Snuffles, fairyman doctor Whispering Forest, took Nancy and Nick along, and what with hot poultices, and castor-oil, and a hundred bitter pills, they saved Flop's life.

HOBOS

By Berton Braier

WE don't know where we're going, but we're on our way.
The running-board is cluttered with our stuff.
The car is filled with baggage like a moving-draw
And we're fit for any travel, smooth or rough.
So we're starting motor-tramping with an outfit made for camping
And our destination's anywhere we please;
So we can't say where you'll find us for we've left our home behind us.
And we've locked the door and thrown away the keys.

WE don't know where we're going, but we're on our way,
And we aren't in any hurry as we go.
When we find a place to linger that's the place we'll stay,
And when we weary of it, we will blow!
We are off upon the highways and the quaint, secluded byways.
We are eager for the sights that we shall see,
There's the wife and little Mary and the dog and brother Harry
And the baby of the family—and me!

WE don't know where we're going, but we're on our way,
And the top is down—we're not afraid of sun;
We've changed from humdrum people into gypsies gay,
And were getting browner daily as we run.
So well room by lake and river in our sturdy little flivver,
You can have your mighty "sixes" and your "twelves."
For the sun and wind are calling and the road is simply crawling
With some half a million other like ourselves!

ECZEMA AND ITS CURE

BY DR. R. H. BISHOP

Common Sense Ways to Keep Well Eczema is the commonest of all skin diseases. It is the skin crying out, either from neglect or bad treatment.
It is not contagious. Sometimes it is acute but more often it is chronic.
Invariably it is attended by itching, and sometimes by loss of cuticle.
The skin, like other parts of the body, depends on the whole system for nutrition, and when the system fails to give this nutrition there is an eruption on the surface. When the skin is not properly nourished every slight irritation is liable to produce eczema.
Eczema may occur on any part of the body or even cover every inch of the body and in such case treatment is very difficult.
In treating it the cause must be found and removed if possible, moisture and air must be avoided and protection must be furnished by means of ointments, dusting powders and bandages, but seldom by lotions and watery fluids. The bowels must be kept open and attention should be paid to the diet, excluding acid fruits, shell fish, tomatoes, and any other irritating food. Pure air, combined with the proper kind of exercise, promotes the functions of the skin and assists in keeping the blood in good condition.
A person suffering from eczema should avoid tub-baths and use soap and water sparingly. Bran added to the water, or baking soda, in the proportion of one teaspoonful to the basin of water, is helpful. The water should always be soft. The use of water on the face should be followed by the immediate use of cold cream.
The cause can sometimes be traced to weakness of the physical condition or bad nerves. In all cases a physician should be consulted in order to point out causes of the disease and special treatment.

UNSHAKEN TESTIMONY

Time is the test of truth. And Deane's Kidney Pills have stood the test in Dixon. No Dixon resident who suffers backache, or annoying urinary ills can remain unconvinced by this twice-told testimony.

Mrs. M. Y. Cox, 814 Van Buren Ave., Dixon, says: "A short time ago my back began to bother me. I had a dull, heavy pain in the small of my back and it was painful for me to stoop or straighten. I also had headaches and frequent dizzy spells. I saw Deane's Kidney Pills advertised and bought some. I used one box and they entirely relieved the trouble. I can highly recommend Deane's Kidney Pills.

(Statement given Jan. 22, 1915.) On April 7, 1921, Mrs. Cox said: "Although it has been several years since I had need of Deane's Kidney Pills, I still feel they are a kidney remedy of merit and I am glad to give them my strongest endorsement.

BASE HITS

CHICAGO, Aug. 9.—(By the Associated Press)—The Pittsburgh Pirates were in third place today and making a bold bid for the higher berths held by the Giants and Cardinals as result of a slugging streak surpassing even the most violent batting outbursts this season and rivaling the best on the record books.

By taking a double victory from the Phillies 19 to 8 and 7-3, making it ten in a row, the larruping Corsairs brought their hit and run total for the last three games with the Quakers 68 and 43 respectively, giving the team a batting average of .466 for the series. They made 23 hits in the first game and 27 and 19 in yesterday's contests. A remarkable feature was the fact that every member of the team connected for at least one hit in each of the games.

Reb Russell and Tierney set the pace with ten apiece, the former turning in the high mark in the first game of the double header with five bingles, including two doubles and a homer, and five runs in as many times at bat.

The Cardinals were idle, but the Giants dropped to a lead of but two points as a result of losing to Cincinnati, 7-3, in 10 innings. Dave Bancroft's wild throw let in the winning tallies, after Long George Kelly had tied the count in the ninth with his second homer of the game.

The Browns and Yankees succumbed to stellar pitching and remained within a game of each other in the American League race. Daws of Detroit had the better of Carl Mays, checking the New Yorkers winning streak of six games, while Zachary held St. Louis to seven scattered hits and Washington won 3-1.

The Boston Red Sox pounded three Cleveland hurlers for 21 hits and a 15 to 6 triumph, while the White Sox continued their slugging against Philadelphia and were victorious 6-4.

The Giants outthit the Reds, but lost the game in the 10th inning when Cincinnati scored four runs.

The Giants' runs resulted from homers, one by Neph and 2 by Kelly. Manager McGraw was put off the field by Umpire Higley for disputing a decision by the arbiter in the fifth inning of the game.

Vic Aldridge and Dutch Reuther allowed nine hits, but the Chicago Cubs bunched theirs to better advantage and defeated Brooklyn 4-1.

Red Russell former White Sox pitcher whom the Pirates obtained from Minneapolis and who now is playing in the outfield, had a field day at bat in the first game against the Phillies.

Aldridge of the Cubs was touched for nine hits, but they were well scattered, while Chicago got the breaks. Neph's fumble of Hack Miller's single, led the way to three runs for the Cubs which gave them the victory in the fourth.

Ty Cobb started the rally which gave the Tigers a triumph over the Yankees. The Georgia Peach singled in the eighth with the score tied, went to second on a sacrifice and shot home with the winning run, on Heilmann's single.

The southpawing of Zachary, with some sparkling doubles plays by his teammates, was too much for the St. Louis Browns, and the Senators checked in. Washington won the game by hitting "Dixie" Davis in the pinches.

Nick Altrock, former southpaw star of the White Sox, who now plays the role of gloom chaser for the Washington Senators, took several toy balloons to right field and amused the St. Louis bleacherites for 15 minutes before the bout between the Senators and the Browns. Nick, the best comedian in the game today, is a big drawing card wherever the Senators appear.

The Red Sox went on a batting rampage against the Indians and scored at will, winning a one-sided game.

The White Sox appear to have pulled themselves out of their batting slump, and for the last two days have been knocking the ball to all corners of the lot.

Beat All Others.

Oregon, Ill., Aug. 8.—With nearly all the exhibits and concessions in at noon today, Ogle county's sixty-fourth annual fair started off on its four-day sessions with several thousand persons in attendance.

In honor of the occasion Oregon business houses have been decorated, and the necessary conveyances are provided to take visitors to the fair grounds which are only a short distance from the center of the city.

Probably there is no busier man in all Ogle county today than E. D. Landers, secretary of the Ogle county fair and race meeting. It is Mr. Landers' duty to place concessions and exhibits, and yesterday and today the secretary was forced to turn away at least fifty persons seeking concessions. There was no more room.

Record Entry in Races. Practically every available foot of space at the grounds for concessions was taken up yesterday, and in spite of this fact those seeking concession privileges continued to come today. They had to be turned away, much to the regret of the fair officials.

Never before in the history of Ogle county has there been so large an entry list of horses for the three days of races which start tomorrow afternoon.

Fully one hundred horses have been entered, and there are to be one running and three harness races every day. It was necessary for the fair ground management to erect twenty additional stalls to accommodate the added number of horses this year.

Out-of-town visitors began to arrive yesterday, and today each train brought in more visitors, bound for the fair. The three hotels of the city are taxed to capacity with those planning to remain throughout the entire four days.

Those who live within convenient radius motor in early in the morning and return home at night, to repeat the same thing the next day. Many take their basket dinners to the grounds and picnic under the many trees found there.

Boys Exhibit Prize Pigs. Among the many exhibits that attracted attention today was the exhibit of the Boys' Pig club. This club is composed of fifteen boys of the county, and the exhibits consist of Poland China, Chester Whites and Duroc Jersey hogs. On Friday forty-five of these hogs will be sold at auction.

W. H. Conkling of Roscoe, has an attractive exhibit of sheep and Chas. Mon of Polo is exhibiting a Duroc Jersey boar that is only one year old and weighs six hundred pounds.

Former Governor Frank O. Lowden has a prize exhibit of Berkshire hogs, and J. O. Marshall of Rockford has his five-gated stallion, Dr. Flynn, on exhibition. Dr. Flynn gives a daily exhibition on the track.

There is an exhibit of Duroc Jersey hogs from the McMill McCormick farm, and there are numerous exhibits of prize cattle from Ogle and the surrounding countries.

THE RED HOUSE MYSTERY

by A. A. MILNE

© 1922 by P. D. Jackson Company

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Who had shot and killed the miser-do-well?

ROBERT ABLETT, within two minutes after his arrival at the Red House, the country estate of his wealthy bachelor brother, Mark, was on the floor of the locked office, Mark had disappeared and in the eyes of Police Inspector Birch it was clear that Mark, who had viewed Robert's return from Australia with annoyance, had shot his brother and then disappeared.

But there were mysterious circumstances. The shot was heard just a few moments before.

ANTHONY GILLINGHAM, gentlemanly adventurer and friend of BILL BEVERLEY, one of Mark's guests, entered the hall where he found

MATT CAYLEY, Mark's constant companion, bounding on the locked door and demanding admittance. The two men entered the office through a window and discovered the body.

Later, Anthony vaguely suspects CAYLEY tells him that Mark was upset a few evenings ago when one of the guests appeared as a ghost on the bowling green. Anthony and Bill discuss various theories of the murder.

GO ON WITH THE STORY

"No, that's rather hopeless, isn't it?" Bill thought again. "Well," he said reluctantly, "suppose Mark confessed that he'd murdered his brother?"

"That's better, Bill. Don't be afraid of getting away from the accident idea. Well then, your new theory is this: Mark confesses to CAYLEY that he shot Robert on purpose, and CAYLEY decides, even at the risk of committing perjury, and getting into trouble himself, to help Mark to escape. Is that right?"

Bill nodded.

"Well then, I want to ask you two questions. First, is it possible, as I said before dinner, that any man would commit such an idiotic murder—a murder that puts the rope so very tightly round his neck? Second, if CAYLEY is prepared to perjure himself for Mark (as he has to, anyway, now), wouldn't it be simpler for him to say that he was in the office all the time, and that Robert's death was accidental?"

Bill considered this carefully, and then nodded slowly again.

"Yes, my simple explanation is a wash-out," he said. "Now let's have yours."

Anthony did not answer him. He had begun to think about something quite different.

CHAPTER IX

WHAT'S the matter?" said Bill sharply.

Anthony looked round at him with raised eyebrows.

"You've thought of something suddenly," said Bill. "What is it?"

Anthony laughed.

"My dear Watson," he said, "you aren't supposed to be as clever as this. Well, I was wondering about this ghost of yours, Bill. This is where she appeared, isn't it?"

"Yes."

"How?"

"How? How do ghosts appear? I don't know. They just appear."

"But how did Miss Norris appear suddenly—over five hundred yards of bare park?"

Bill looked at Anthony with open mouth.

"I—I don't know," he stammered. "We never thought of that."

"You would have seen her long before, wouldn't you, if she had come the way we came?"

"Of course we should."

"And that would have spoiled it rather. You would have had time to recognize her walk. She couldn't have been hiding in the ditch?"

"No, she couldn't. Betty and I walked round a bit. We should have seen her."

"Then she must have been hiding in the shed. Or do you call it the summer-house?"

"We had to go there for the bowls, of course. She couldn't have been there."

"It's dashed funny," said Bill, after an interval for thought. "But it doesn't matter, does it? It has nothing to do with Robert?"

"Haven't I?"

"I say, has it?" said Bill, getting excited again.

"I don't know. We don't know what has, or what hasn't. But it has got something to do with Miss Norris. And Miss Norris—" He broke off suddenly.

"What about her?"

Anthony knocked out his pipe and got up slowly.

"Well then, let's find the way from the house by which Miss Norris came."

Bill jumped up eagerly.

"By Jove! Do you mean there's a secret passage?"

"A secluded passage, anyway. There must be."

"I say, what fun! I love secret passages."

INCH BY INCH HIS HEAD

WENT ROUND THE CORNER.

passages. Good Lord, and this afternoon I was playing golf just like an ordinary merchant! What a life? Secret passages?

They made their way down into the ditch. If an opening was to be found which led to the house, it would probably be on the house side of the green, and on the outside of the ditch. The most obvious place at which to begin the search was the shed where the bowls were kept. There were two boxes of croquet things, one of them with the lid open. Anthony tapped the wall at the back of the shed.

"This is where the passage ought to begin."

"It needn't begin here at all, need it?" said Bill, walking round with bent head, and tapping the other walls. He was just too tall to stand upright in the shed.

"There's only one reason why it should, and that is that it would save us the trouble of looking anywhere else for it."

Anthony began to feel in his pockets for his pipe and tobacco, and then suddenly stopped and stiffened to attention. For a moment he stood listening, with his head on one side, holding up a finger to bid Bill listen, too.

"What is it?" whispered Bill.

Anthony waved him to silence, and remained listening. Very quietly he went down on his knees, and listened again. Then he put his ear to the floor. He got up and dusted himself quickly, walked across to Bill and whispered in his ear.

"Footsteps. Somebody coming. When I begin to talk, back me up."

Bill nodded. Anthony gave him an encouraging pat on the back, and stepped firmly across to the box of bowls, whistling loudly to himself. He took the bowls out, dropped one with a loud bang on the floor, said, "Oh, Lord!" and went on:

"I say, Bill, I don't think I want to play bowls, after all."

"Well, why did you say you did?" grumbled Bill.

Anthony flashed a smile of appreciation at him.

"Well, I wanted to when I said I did, and now I don't want to."

"Then what do you want to do?"

"There's a seat on the lawn. Let's go over there and bring these things along in case we want to play."

As they went across the lawn, Anthony dropped the bowls and took out his pipe.

"Got a match?" he said loudly.

As he bent his head over the match, he whispered, "There'll be somebody listening to us. You take the 'Cayley view.' They walked over to the seat and sat down."

"What a heavenly night!" said Anthony.

"Ripping."

"I wonder where that poor devil Mark is now."

"It's a rum business."

"You agree with Cayley—that it was an accident?"

"Yes. You see, I know Mark."

"H'm." Anthony produced a pencil and a piece of paper and began to write on his knee, but while he wrote, he talked. He said that he thought Mark had shot his brother in a fit of anger, and that Cayley knew, or anyhow guessed, this, and had tried to give his cousin a chance of getting away.

"Mind you, I think he's right. I think it's what any of us would do. I shan't give it away, of course, but somehow there are one or two little things which make me think that Mark really did shoot his brother—I mean other than accidentally."

"Murdered him?"

"Well, mannaughted him, anyway. I may be wrong. Anyway, it's not my business."

"But why do you think so? Because of the keys?"

"Oh, the keys are a wash-out. Still, it was a brilliant idea of mine, wasn't it?"

He had finished his writing, and now passed the paper over to Bill. In the clear moonlight the carefully printed letters could easily be read:

"Go on talking as if I were here. After a minute or two, turn round as if I were sitting on the grass behind you, but go on talking."

"I know you don't agree with me."

Anthony went on as Bill read, "but you'll see that I'm right."

Bill looked up and nodded eagerly. He had forgotten golf and Betty and all the other things which had made up his world lately. This was the real thing. This was life.

"Well," he began deliberately, "the whole point is that I know Mark. Now, Mark—"

But Anthony was off the seat and letting himself gently down into the ditch. His intention was to crawl round it until the shed came in sight. The footsteps which he had heard seemed to be underneath the shed; probably there was a trap-door of some kind in the floor. Whoever it was would have heard their voices, and would probably think it worth while to listen to what they were saying.

He walked quickly but very silently along the half-length of the bowling-green to the first corner, passed cautiously round, and then went even more carefully along the width of it to the second corner. He could hear Bill hard at it, and he smiled appreciatively to himself. Bill was a great conspirator—worth a hundred Watsons. As he approached the second corner he slowed down, and did the last few yards on hands and knees. Then, lying at full length, inch by inch his head went round the corner.

The shed was two or three yards to his left, on the opposite side of the ditch. From where he lay he could see almost entirely inside it. Everything seemed to be as they left it. The bowls-box, the lawn-mower, the roller, the open croquet-box, the—

"By Jove!" said Anthony to himself, "that's neat."

The lid of the other croquet-box was open, too.

Bill was turning round now; his voice became more difficult to hear. "You see what I mean," he was saying. "If Cayley—"

And out of the second croquet-box came Cayley's black head.

Gorky Sounds Praise for American Charity

Hamburg Aug. 8.—(By the Associated Press)—"The charity of the American people kindles the dream of brotherhood among mankind just at the time when brotherly love and sympathy are very much needed," writes Maxim Gorky, in a letter thanking Herbert Hoover and all other American for the aid extended during the Russian famine.

The letter, given out by the local office of the American Relief Administration is dated July 30, exactly a year from the date Gorky addressed his telegraphic appeal for assistance from America.

The famous writer declares that in the entire history of human catastrophe he knows none so severe as the misfortunes which have befallen Russia in her famine, and in history of human kindness nothing to compare with the extent and unselfishness of the assistance given under the direction of Secretary Hoover.

Poor laundry work spoils the appearance of well grooming in every respect. Gray, half clean linen reflects upon the wearer. "Carelessness" is the verdict. For white clothes call City Steam Laundry, Pumphrey & Teeter, 319 First St., Phone 98. 7 9 11

"THE BEAUTY SHOP"
WITH Raymond Hitchcock and an all star cast
Created by Cosmopolitan Productions
A Paramount Picture

The aristocrat of comedy-romances. A gay whirl of pretty girls, frisky dancing, love making—and more fun than a dozen comedies combined, "The Beauty Shop" stands in a class by itself with the greatest comedy cast ever assembled. This is the picture that staggered New York like a ton of dynamite—blew Broadway to bits—ripped open Harlem and the Bronx—rocked Brooklyn and the outlying districts.

If Ringling had this show he would throw away his circus.
